BOYS AND GIRLS. How the Alamo Mission Was Defended.

A Handful of Heroic Texans Fought for Independence There—A Royal Luncheon—How Arthur Took Care of Himself—A Boy's Dinner.

It is a safe wager that nine out of every eleven boys who are proficient in the use of bowie knife have not the slightest idea where the instrument got its name.
Colonel Bowie, of Texas, fame gave the knife its title.
And when one writes of the Texas hero, one must needs to think of the battle of Alamo, that heroic fight of which our American boys and girls seem to think so little and half of them know nothing whatever.
They read how the brave soldiers fought and held the pass of Thermopylae, but they seldom think of how a mere handful of men defended the Alamo mission. How they dropped fighting on their knees, and then died facing the foe.

If you should go to the historical city of San Antonio in Texas you will see the old mission building standing with battered, bullet-pierced walls, a monument to the 172 heroes of '36.
Behind these walls the most important battle in the war between Mexico and Texas was fought. This was when Santa Anna was president and the Texans were fighting for their independence. Here it was that Colonel Bowie ended his brave life, dying with his boots on and fighting under the most terrible odds. The story is this, and every American child should know it by heart, that he may tell it with pride when other nations are talking of their great deeds: One hundred and forty-five men under Captain Travis, a young man of twenty-eight, were holding the town of San Antonio against General Santa Anna and 4,000 men. They were the only defenders of the town and were enclosed in the old mission of the Alamo. Davy Crockett was also with them, and Colonel Bowie, who was wounded and stretched out on his cot. Of artillery they had only fourteen pieces.

Santa Anna demanded surrender, but the little garrison held out for ten days, skirmishing secretly for food and water. Every shot sent out of the mission house told, but not one of the Alamo heroes was hurt. Patience and strength, however, were being rapidly exhausted. Some of the little band were falling sick, others were desperate. Re-enforcements had been appealed for, but none had come. Colonel Lamein, with 300 men and four pieces of artillery, had started in answer to the appeal, but had put in somewhere for fresh water and food supplies.

At last Captain Smith joined the exhausted band with thirty-two men.
Three days after General Santa Anna ceased the bombardment, and, taking advantage of this, Captain Travis called his men into line and frankly owned that there was no earthly hope for them; that he had led them into this thinking that re-enforcements were on the way. He does not utter one word against Lamein for failing him; he simply gives them their choice of deaths. They can surrender and be shot down, or be killed fighting out their revenge. The Captain drew a line and said: "Every man who is determined to remain here and die with me come to me across that line." Every soldier but one crossed at once.
When they finished Colonel Bowie looked up, with his arm in a sling, and cried: "Boys, don't leave me.
Won't some of you carry me across?"
And the only backward step they made was to go over the line and carry the colonel to the young captain's side. The man Rose, who was a coward, dropped over the wall into a ditch, and was verily the only man who escaped to tell the tale. And then came the terrible day.
Santa Anna brought all his forces to bear on the fortress. The scaling ladders were again and again raised, but those who placed them were shot down like grain. Four thousand men charging into 175 seemed easy enough, but it soon reduced the four thousand. At last numbers conquered, and the Mexicans climbed over the wall to the Alamo. The little band of defenders were trampled on an beaten, but they dropped to their knees and handed and shot and pierced until the pile of dead men was awful. Colonel Bowie, too weak to raise from his cot, leans on his well elbow, and marks his man every time he pulls the trigger. Cut, bleeding, he continues to kill until the pistol drops and the breath leaves his body. Davy Crockett, standing in a corner, fights like a panther, and the young captain, backed against the wall, surrenders only when run through and through.
The great battle is over. The Mexicans have won. Out of 172 Texans 172 are dead. No Spartans were braver or more tenacious, for they killed 522 of their enemies and wounded five hundred more. Texas, though was finally freed, and whenever great deeds thrill young boy's hearts, they should think of that splendid piece of American daring, and say as Houston said to his men: "Remember the Alamo."—(Clarie Claxton, in St.

Louis Republic.)

A Plain Business Matter.

Come let us reason together for our mutual profit. If in the mercantile world you placed a man in charge of your business, and at the end of each succeeding year you should find him dropping behind until at the end of say twelve years you call for a settlement and find that your man of business had devolved you deeply in debt; with several shady transactions charged against him, which he either would not or could not explain to your satisfaction. Would you still, with the best part of your capital expended, and your affairs hopelessly tangled with a deficit of several thousand dollars staring you in the face, would you still further entrust this man with the management of your business? Why certainly you would not, no sane man would. And yet we are called upon to-day to witness something similar. The people of this grand old State of Kentucky have entrusted the management of their State Governmental affairs to the Democratic party. They have been in sole and undivided possession of the affairs of this State for a number of years, during a time too wealthy with the natural advantages and great resources of our State we should have made rapid strides towards financial and industrial success. I ask you in all seriousness have they made a success of the business entrusted to their keeping? There is not a man in the State of Kentucky to-day who is at all conversant with the facts in regard to our State Government; but what will answer that they have not?
With our State involved in debt, with the common school fund exhausted, having been applied to other purposes which they had not a shadow of legal right to do. The spectacle of our poorly paid school teachers having to shave their accounts due from the school fund to obtain ready money. A large size hole in the State Treasury that should be filled to overflowing. Whose fault is this my dear reader? Can you conscientiously charge to the Republican party, has it been caused by the McKinley Bill or the force bill? Has Tom Reed with his little gavel done it? Of course not, therefore you and I can only draw one conclusion, and that it has been caused by the natural and inherent imbecility of Democratic leaders. Are you going to say to them "brave old boys" let the robbery of the people go on, or are you going to say unto them depart from me ye workers of iniquity, into everlasting obscurity where you properly belong. When that detestable gang of machine politicians at Frankfort brings forward one of their number for your support for the highest office in the State will you blindly wink at past transgressions and by your vote and influence place your seal of condemnation on their past thieving transactions. We sincerely hope not.
The time has come when it behooves the people of this State to change the condition of our government if we desire to take our rightful place among the leading farming, and industrial States of the Union. Only relieve us from the blighting curse of Democratic mismanagement, incapacity and barrenness and see how soon our otherwise well blessed State would come to the front. Oh ye men and brethren of common cause, how oft would I have gathered you together under the protecting wings of a Republican Administration but ye would not. Why will you persist in deliberately closing your eyes to the many defects that exist in this Democratic party of many promises and no actions; and see this State plundered and robbed by the gang of lu-men leeches that has fastened upon the body political. Will you not help us struggle for deliverance from this curse. Turn a deaf ear to the fair tales that will be invented by this hungry horde of Democratic office-seekers and told, not for your benefit, but for theirs. Join the ranks of the grand old Republican party, and let us march forward to redeem this grand old State in November.—
[First District Republican.]

Drink and the Defective Classes.
A few weeks ago we discussed the rapid increase of the defective classes in the United States, and pointed out the fact that they were increasing in a greater ratio than the population of the country. For this increase there must be some cause or causes; and in that article we showed that the liquor habit is largely responsible for a large proportion of the insane, idiotic and epileptic, and also for a large portion of the pauperism in the United States. Now we wish to examine this matter on its financial side—the burden which the taxpayers must assume to pay for caring these people. That is to say, we will endeavor to find approximately the indirect cost of rum to the people—for the expenditures under this head are not a part of the enormous direct annual drink bill of the nation.
We estimated, on the authority of economists who have examined into the facts, three-fourths of the defective and dependent classes are made so through the abuse of liquor.
We have now about 600,000 insane,

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report

Royal Baking Powder
ABSOLUTELY PURE

idiotic, deaf, blind, pauper and criminal persons in the entire country.
Three-fourths of this number is 400,- 000. These cannot cost the people less than $175 a year each on an average. This gives a total cost of $70,- 000,000 a year—over $1 each for every man, woman and child in the country!
What principal does this annual expenditure represent, to use a common method among business men?
It would require a principal of two and one-third billion dollars, at 3 per cent, to bring an annual income of $70,000,000. This sum is greater than the national debt. In point of fact, if government bonds all bore 3 per cent, interest, it would require almost twice the present debt to bring a yearly income equal to the cost of supporting that portion of our criminal and defective classes whose condition is due, directly or indirectly, to the drink habit.

By the census of 1890, the total value of the products of all the manufacturing industries in the United States were $9,372,437,283. The annual burden of the care of those of the defective and dependent classes, who are the results of the drink traffic, is equal to the interest on a permanent investment of one-third the total value of all our manufactured products for 1890! Is not this too great a price to pay?

By the same report, the total value of all our farm products for 1890 was $2,460,107,454. It would take a fund almost as large as this, invested at 3 per cent., to produce enough interest to care for our criminal and defective classes, made such through strong drink.

We might add another example, but these will suffice. They show that the indirect burden of rum traffic is appalling in its magnitude, while the direct burden is enormous. Both are increasing and more rapidly than the population of the country. Is it not time to call a halt? Shall we not set bonds to this increase? There is but one way to do this, and that is to stop the traffic. Prohibit the manufacture and sale, and thus stop the manufacture of drunkards, and lunatics, and idiots, and criminals. All that is needed is that the people shall be made to realize the fearful burden it lays upon them. They will unite in one great and successful effort to plunderize the Rum Power.—[Toledo Blade.]

WASHINGTON SOCIETY.

Magnitude and Cost of social Entertainments.

Special to THE REPUBLICAN.
Social entertainments in Washington perhaps on a more elaborate scale than similar events in other cities where people of wealth have their homes. It may be said that the ostentatious display of wealth in this direction is not so common as elsewhere Society at the National Capital, is cosmopolitan, and it is impossible to apply strictly the standard of money.
There are many persons whose official position entitle them to social recognition, who have only moderate incomes. They mingle on equal terms with those who are favored with a greater share of this world's goods, and also do their part in entertaining.

Now that Lent is here, and the rapid pace which society maintained during the season has somewhat abated, an opportunity is given to look back over the past. No doubt in many cases an estimate is made of what it costs to take a prominent part in the life of society. A great deal of money has been spent, and while it is customary to say that the past season has exceeded all others in point of elaborateness and display, yet such a statement is hardly correct. It seems that whatever may be the condition of the money market, or whichever party is in power, society at the Capital pursues its way without much change. There are always some people who spend a good deal of money, and if for any reason they have not the same one to fill their places.

While those who entertain most extensively would not care to have a mere money estimate placed upon their hospitality, still this feature make a very convenient method of classification. At the head of the list, perhaps, stands Senator Brice, or rather Mrs. Brice. They occupy one of the largest private residence in the city, and during the past winter they have given one entertainment after the other. In addition to providing elaborate refreshments and costly floral decorations Mrs. Brice has secured the services of some of the most noted musicians who have sung and played to furnish an evening's pleasure for her guests. They have, of course been liberally compensated, and it is within the bounds of a moderate estimate to say that one such a musical has cost the hostess the round sum of $1,000.

The widow of the late Mr. Hearst, the millionaire Senator from California, gave perhaps the most costly single entertainment of the season in the form of a Louis XVI reception.
On this occasion the servants worliveries of that period, the guests were appropriately gowned, and the famous orchestra leader, Seldi, with his musicians all dressed in the costume of the period, furnished the musical program for the evening. To secure the latter feature, Mrs. Hearst must have paid a very large sum of money.

The wife of the inventor of the air-brake, Mrs. Westinghouse, occupied a suite of apartments at once of the leading hotels here, and each week she gave a tea or an afternoon reception, which became the talk of the town on account of the profuse display of costly flowers. American beauty roses, which cost then a dollar apiece, were lavishly used, while orchids and other rare flowers were massed on the tables and on the mantle pieces.

There is a wide range in the scale of social entertainments, and while such lavish expenditure of money as above noted did not mark all the entertainments, still there were numerous receptions given which easily cost the entertainers four or five hundred dollars. It is possible, however, to be in society and not spend so much money, and perhaps quite as much enjoyment is derived both by the hosts, and the guests, when the flowers and music and refreshments do not represent such a large outlay of money. All this sort of thing, however, is not regarded as extravagance for those who can afford it. It puts money into circulation and helps business generally. The practical side of society life is not fully appreciated.
As a trade promoter it has no small influence, and perhaps, the only criticism that can be made, is that some people who have not the means are tempted by ambition to try to entertain on the same scale of magnificence as those whose bank account fully justifies the outlay.

Of Center town, as a candidate to represent Ohio county in the Lower House of the next General Assembly, subject to the action of the Republican party.

DEMOCRACY AS SHE IS.

Below is a clipping from the Bullitt Pioneer, which, if for nothing else, will serve to show how ungenerous Democratic papers are even to members of their own party and to Democratic officials. The Pioneer says: "Prof. H. K. Taylor is making an energetic canvass for State Superintendent. So far as the present incumbent is concerned, Prof. Taylor should have a walk-over. The Hon. Ed Porter Thompson is the worst pill in the box, and we earnestly hope he will miserably fail in his attempt at organizing the various county Superintendents and the teachers of the State into a political machine to secure his re-election. His administration of this important office is about the worst on record, and he should be overwhelmingly defeated."

We know nothing of Prof. Taylor save that he bears the reputation of a high-toned gentleman and an earnest educator, and surely we bear no malice against him. Neither are we interested in the candidacy of the present incumbent, for no matter who wins the Democratic nomination, the next Superintendent of Public Instruction for Kentucky will be a Republican and nominated by the next Republican State Convention. But we do insist that truth is always preferable to error and while the Pioneer may be for Prof. Taylor, as it has a right to be, yet it should not seek to secure his nomination by traducing the official character and capacity of the present incumbent. Everybody who is at all conversant with educational affairs must admit that Capt. Ed Porter Thompson has made one of the very best Superintendents the State ever had. But if the Pioneer prefers let it continue its manufacture of campaign thunder, only it should remember that the Republicans do not depend upon thunder of that brand—they have too much that is true to resort to that which is false. The clipping is but an outcropping of the spirit that has long inhabited the Kentucky Democracy and which manifests itself in every contest, whether within its own ranks, as in this case, or in a contest before the people.

It is the rule or ruin doctrine. The doctrine that blasts character, destroys reputation, besmirches official integrity, misrepresents the principles of its opponents and clothes the false in the habiliments of the true that its own selfish ends may be attained. This practice has long and well served the Kentucky Democracy, but the day of retribution is at hand. The remnants of that once so powerful organization may still use it as a weapon in their own ranks, in securing the empty honors, the sounding brass and tinkling cymbals of Democratic nominations, but when they come before the people the lash which, for a generation, has kept the "boys in the trenches" from mutiny, will be unavailing. They shall be weighed in the balance and found wanting, while the "boys in the trenches" will be voting the Republican ticket. If the Democracy expects to maintain standing even as a minority party, it must change its methods.

The Courier-Journal came out in a mammoth Woman's Edition on Wednesday and the old paper under the hand of the fair pen-pushers eclipsed any former success. The Courier-Journal should turn itself over soul and body to the women for all time.

The Huntington Democrat says: "In the court room a lawyer may call a man a liar, scoundrel, villain or a thief and no one makes complaint when court adjourns. If a newspaper prints such reflections on a man's character there is a libel suit or a dead editor. Can it be that every one believes the newspaper man and no one believes the lawyer?"

MR. H. P. Taylor has received a letter from Major Lockwood of the U. S. Engineers requesting names of parties who might perhaps wish to make bids for furnishing timber and other materials for the construction of the locks and dams on Rough River. The work will be pushed through this year.

In view of the prevalence of smallpox in several portions of the State, the State Board of Health has issued a circular letter requesting immediate efforts on the part of the authorities to prevent further encroachments of the loathsome disease. Vaccination and re-vaccination are the remedies prescribed and urged. Our people should not wait the action of the authorities but begin the work at once.

LI HUNG CHANG, the Chinese Peace Commissioner to Japan, was shot on Sunday by a young Japanese while the former was returning to his lodging after having attended a peace conference with the Japanese ministers. The wound was inflicted in the fleshy part of the face and is not serious. The occurrence is sincerely regretted by all the world and especially by the Japanese, whose interests are likely to suffer as a result.

Two young men, Josh Speed, reporter for the Louisville Post, and Isaac Marcossan, reporter for the Louisville Times, were assaulted and grossly insulted by a Louisville business man on Monday. They attended a fire and in search of particulars met one Mr. Hirst, who at once insulted them and gave young Speed a severe beating. Press reports say Hirst acted a ruffian. Louisville's newspaper men are frequently imposed upon in this style. The boys ought to shoot a dozen or so of these cattle and put a stop to their high-handed tactics.

Two new telephone lines are talked of says the Owensboro Messenger. Efforts are being made to extend the Pettit line to Lewis station. Manager Boardman has made a very liberal proposition and the business men of Lewis have it under consideration. If it is constructed, an extension will also be made to Livermore. As soon as the weather opens the line now running to Whitesville will be extended to Deaneville. Both these extensions will be beneficial to Owensboro as well as to the towns to have the service.

THE JUDGESHIP.
Our Lebanon Correspondent Gives Vent to his feelings.

LEBANON, KY., March 25, 1895.
Alas poor Alec. One for Buck Kilgore and one for Springer, but none for our Alec. Well, I did not risk an opinion in my last, only asked the question, will he get it? His friends here, men who are nearer to him, I suppose, than any others in the district said his appointment to one of the Indian Territory Judgeships was a certainty. It was only necessary to wait until the duck hunt was over. So it was certainly true that Mr. Montgomery desired it very much, and felt perfectly assured that he would get it. As the good old hymn, however, says "human hopes of deceive us" and Mr. Montgomery has doubtless found now, that too many men have been repudiated by the people for the President to find position in question but that could hardly have been an objection, in the light of Buck Kilgore's appointment; then too how did the President find it?

The press dispatches in sizing up the qualifications of Buck Kilgore and giving a bill of particulars of those which were considered as weighing most with the President and were probably his winning cards, would seem to be such qualifications as would be eminently fitting in a U. S. Marshal; or would grace well the judge of such Southern courts as usually adjudicate the penal and criminal cases of the negroes of the South. In other words, with out circumlocution, he was selected because he was not afraid of the bold bad men, such as inhabit the Democratic sections of the Indian Territory. Mr. Kilgore has shown himself to be more of a man of brawn than of brain, and it is the kind of judge the Indian Territory should have, the President has no doubt acted wisely.

While in Congress, Mr. Kilgore showed a great disregard for law and order and some times even decency, but that may have arisen from the irritating effects of that restraint which law and order some times put upon us; being accustomed only to the wild freedom of the wild and undisciplined State in which he lives, Mr. Kilgore's apologists will find much to say in his behalf. But now that he is a Judge, he is no longer a Congressman, and he is no longer a Democrat. He is the antipode of Buck Kilgore in everything that goes to make up a man I had almost said a Democrat. They both possess all that is worst in Democracy and much that is good in men.

Buck Kilgore would be a noble and good at heart if his education would permit him. Springer is a gentleman through force of education. Irritating, annoying, unpleasant and unbearable when he forgets his better training and casts aside the results of his education. Kilgore, knowing less law, will make the better judge.

Two representative Democrats, each a representative of his class, well provided for "until death do us part." If there is to be a change in the day on which our State Convention will be held it should be made without delay; for many counties will soon be holding their County Conventions.

Persons who don't live in the neighborhood of these National Centuries don't know what a disappointment it is to a great many people to have these dates conflict. It is true, and too true, that the great mass of loyal people in Kentucky, those who revere the memory of the Federal dead because of their devotion to our country and our country's flag are Republicans. To these Republicans it will be a disappointment not to be able to attend the largest Republican Convention ever held in Kentucky. Their first duty will be to properly observe Memorial Day. In our beautiful cemetery long lines after long lines of heroic dead, from far off States, stretch out before us. Many a loved one at home, mayhap, knows not where they rest. The eyes of many a lost loved one, long ere this, have closed upon the restless, varying and unsatisfying scenes of this earth, and hearts ceased to long for the presence of those who never returned only after their eyes had closed and the hearts of sorrow had ceased to throb. Yet with these dead, their surviving comrades and friends and many patriotic souls gather annually and pay their tribute of respect and love for their memory, and teach to the young rising generation the lesson of patriotism and duty presented in the lives and the death of these men. Decoration Day will not be neglected for any Convention. Let the day of Convention be fixed for a day or week earlier or later and let it be done at once. Democratic Presidents can afford to go fishing on Decoration Day, because they are built that way, but Republicans can not afford to hold Conventions so as to conflict with the ceremonies on that day.

County Conventions will soon be called to choose delegates to the State Convention and for the very important purpose of nominating good men for the Legislature. The Republicans expect to control the next Legislature, and will do so if no mistakes are made in their candidates. In the Fourth district, the Republicans will elect representatives from the following counties beyond a peradventure: Washington, Marion, Green and Taylor, Hart, Ohio, Grayson, Breckinridge, Buitt and Spencer. It is very probable too, that Hardin will fall into line, as Mr. Montgomery was barely able, only to carry it, his home county, last fall and certainly reason why any body should vote the Democratic ticket have not increased since then.

It occurs to me too, if the little Mogul of all LaRue should spread himself out over that county, as he is so able to do, a representative, good and true, might come up from that land of Democracy also. Where is there any way? He should have been at the Committee meeting on the 6th inst., taking counsel with the faithful as to the best methods of smiting, hip and thigh, the Democratic Philistines of that county, over which he reigns supreme.

We will see you at the Convention, if providence or Decatur Day don't interfere, for I know you will be there with LaRue's six votes at your disposal, and they could not be intrusted to better hands.

In writing up an account of that Louisville meeting for the Hardinsburg Leader, I made it appear that Breckinridge county was not represented there when in fact it was, by the editor of that splendid journal, himself. At least he says he was there and I believe he was, although I could not have been many feet from him during the time we were in open committee. Eskridge, like myself and Cad Burba, is not a large man, that is physically, but he is large enough for one to see, and like Burba, in LaRue, he makes himself felt in Breckinridge county.

It is real refreshing to a Republican like myself read up here just on the outskirts of the blue grass where Democracy has so long held sway and has so long, in a manner, broken our spirits, to be in touch with the stalwart Republicanism of the West End.

Where Logan Pate tried to make three miles an hour, last summer, over the Breckinridge county roads, we thought of ours over which we easily drive twelve in an hour, but as each season brings its own rewards "so does each condition have its own recompense. Breckinridge has very much to offset its roads in its magnificent citizenship and its splendid Republicanism. However, Pate was the best man for such roads I ever saw.

Like a Highlander on his native soil among the blue hills of the heather, Pate was at home among the worst hills of old Breckinridge. He would die if confined to Holt's bottom, that lovely vale, further back in the interior is the Breckinridge for him.

In the earlier days of my Republican experience the first and only Republican I knew in the good county of Breckinridge was Giddens Jolly, now gone to his reward, and uncle Giddens was a man of valor in his day too. Now it is pleasant to know many of them and of this young David of the Leazer much might be said that would encourage other young men of this county, but I cannot write it to his own paper for fear he would be too modest to publish it and I dislike to say behind his back what I will not say to his face.

We, Republicans up here in Marion, are jealous of the three counties of Grayson, Ohio and Breckinridge all supporting good Republican papers and we can't get one on foot with three other counties right around us with no Republican paper in them. Marion county, before last fall's election, had only one Republican precinct in it, with one other very close. If, however, we had just three or four Burrell Beards I believe we could so distribute them as to make the county safely Republican for all time to come. Isn't Burrell a good one after all? No wonder Republicanism flourishes where you have the Eskridge and Haswell to plant and the Smiths, Beards and Pates to water.

Messrs. George Serbert and Alvin Carter attended church at McGrady Schoolhouse Sunday night.

Mr. J. E. V. Smith, one of the oldest and best citizens of the county, died at the home of his son-in-law, Mr. Sam Morton, Ceralvo, Sunday evening at 3 o'clock and was buried at Equality burying ground Monday evening. The deceased was a member of the Masonic Fraternity and the members of this order conducted the burial. The ceremonies were under the auspices of Ceralvo Lodge No. 253, of which Mr. Smith was a member, assisted by several of the brethren from Rockport Lodge No. 312 and Hartford Lodge No. 675. Uncle Johnnie's many virtues will be long remembered by his friends and neighbors and the good example found in his long life of eight-three years will bear fruit in the lives of others. Peace to his ashes.

What is

CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrup, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Cud, cures Diarrhoea and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.
"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."
Dr. G. C. Osgood,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
Dr. J. F. Kitchell, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.
"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. Archer, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

The work of Breckinridge Normal College, at Hardinsburg, has so increased that Prof. P. B. Hays, a teacher of rare attainment, has been added to the faculty.

Mr. Will Thomas, of near Lexington, has bought a farm near Sulphur Springs, and has moved onto same.

Mr. Thomas is a first-class farmer, and Ohio county always welcomes such citizens.

In this week's issue you will find the "ad" of Evans Bros., Importing Tailors, of Owensboro. Messrs. Evans are young and very popular gentlemen, who have built up an extensive trade throughout the Green River country, and this spring they are offering some special inducements in outer garments. When you want good clothes; good fits, &c., call on them and say you saw their "ad" in THE REPUBLICAN, and you will get something nice.

Among the many Insurance Companies doing business in this State none, perhaps, ranks higher than the United States Life, of New York, represented in this District by the genial, whole-souled Col. S. R. Dent, of Leitchfield. Col. Dent has written more policies in this section than anyone could have anticipated. He is now in Hartford for a few days, and should you desire to take out a policy it would pay you to see him.

CARSON & CO.

Mrs. Martha J. Ward and Mrs. Caroline Chapman, of Beda, gave us a call yesterday.

Don't stop this side of Fair Bros. & Co's for low prices. We positively will not be undersold.

A well posted woman—the one who knows that Fair Bros. & Co. have the line of dress goods of Hartford.

Colored marriage license: Thos. D. Taylor, Lulu Walker, W. V. Lawrence to Lucy Nichols, Eugene Atkins to Mary Kuykendoll.

Reports have reached here that the Stave Factory at Horse Branch was totally destroyed by fire Monday night. Loss not known.

Mrs. E. D. Guffy and daughter, Miss Mercedes, who have been visiting in Bowling Green and Bardonia, returned home yesterday.

Marriage license: B. C. Fuqua to Miss Almata Royal, S. H. Easton to Miss Louisa E. Wells, Wm. E. Williams to Miss Amanda C. Ferguson.

Mr. E. P. Barnes and Miss Fannie Barnes have just returned from the Eastern Cities, where they purchased an immense stock for Hocker & Co., Beaver Dam.

It is rumored by knowing ones that two of the most popular young people of Beaver Dam will be married next Wednesday at the St. Francis Hotel in Owensboro.

Mr. M. I. Heavrin received a telephone yesterday telling him his brother, Mr. Chas. Heavrin, was dangerously ill with typhoid fever. He and his brothers, Sam, Bee and Frank, left immediately for Owensboro.

Notice the "ad" of Hocker & Co., live wide-awake merchants, of Beaver Dam. They recognize the value of THE REPUBLICAN for reaching the majority of the people, and the people will get value for their money when they trade with them.

In another place in this issue you will find an "ad" for Edward Rose & Co., Merchant Tailors of Chicago, represented here by Messrs. Carson & Co., the popular merchants. Henry Carson can take your measure for a suit and when you put it on you will be one of the best dressed men in the country.

Among the many Insurance Companies doing business in this State none, perhaps, ranks higher than the United States Life, of New York, represented in this District by the genial, whole-souled Col. S. R. Dent, of Leitchfield. Col. Dent has written more policies in this section than anyone could have anticipated. He is now in Hartford for a few days, and should you desire to take out a policy it would pay you to see him.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
"It gives me great pleasure to state what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for me and my wife. She has been afflicted with neuralgia pains in her head for six years and it settled in her eyes. At times she would be totally blind and have to stay in a dark room for months. A short time ago we began using Hood's Sarsaparilla and today I thank God, she is able to attend to her household duties, which she had not previously done for years. My own case was somewhat similar, and since taking Hood's Sarsaparilla the inflammation has left my eyes and my nerves have become quieted. My health today is better than it has been for several years. I am gaining in strength and I feel like a new man." WILLIAM H. NUNAMAKER, Judsonia, Arkansas.

THE HYPATIANS
Meet in College Hall and Entertain the Public Handsomely.

When the old College bell chimed on last Friday evening many friends were seen wending their way toward the brilliantly lighted hall, and long before the hour for performance came a large and appreciative audience had assembled to witness the first appearance of the Hypatians. A thrill of joy touched every soul, when Miss Corinne Cox took her seat at piano and the strains of music called into view twenty or thirty young ladies, who seemed to be a grand display of all that was beautiful and intellectual, looking like rare specimens from womanhood's flower-garden, who could but feel the enchantment when so much seemed portrayed in the lives of these young ladies, and in listening to those beautiful ideas, thoughts, pure and deep. Who could doubt the influence of woman and but feel great things awaited to crown the fruition of all her efforts, how ennobling, how elevating are the words of that woman, who is doing all for the development of her mind and for the amelioration of mankind?

We wish space would allow us to speak of each performance, for each executed her piece in a manner that reflected credit on her parents and teacher, and did honor and credit to herself. The programme consisted of recitations, orations and essays interspersed with music furnished by Misses Corinne Cox, Edna Griffin, Emma Moseley, Mamie Ross, Anna Fogle, Jessie Smith and Mrs. G. B. Likens.

The subjects were carefully selected, the recitations were of the best selections and all were well delivered. The young ladies deserve special merit for true worth and noble efforts in the great literary work in which they are engaged, for the success they are achieving and for the rare treat that was offered the public last Friday evening.

FRIDAY, MARCH 29, 1895.

Now—the Time to make Money.

Last month I cleared, after paying all expenses, $175.46; the month before, $159.93, and have at the same time attended to my regular business. I believe anyone, anywhere can do as well, as I have not a particularly good location and no experience. When you have an article that every family wants, it is very easy selling it. It seems strange that a good, cheap Dish Washer was never before placed on the market. With the Climax, which sells at $5, you can wash and dry the dishes for a family in two minutes, without putting the hands in the water; as soon as people see the Washer work, they want one, and that is why so much money can be made so quickly. For full particulars, address the Climax Mfg. Co., Columbus, Ohio. I feel convinced that any lady or gentleman in any location, can make from $5 to $10 a day, as every family will very soon have a Dish Washer. Try it, and publish your experience for the benefit of others.

Good Advertising.

Good advertising is one of the best helps for successful retailing. It brings in the Dry Goods Economist. This fact is so clearly demonstrated by the most successful business men in all parts of the world that further argument on the question really seems superfluous.

It is not enough to "keep store" in these days, but, in order to keep your business going at a pace that your rival can't outstrip, you've got to let the public know what you are doing. You may know all about it yourself; you may know that you have the best store in town, equipped with every facility for doing business properly, and lots of other people know it, too—they gradually find it out by telling another—but the great public don't know it, until their attention is sharply called to the fact by intelligent, forceful advertising. It is wonderful how the work of years can be accomplished in a few brief months by the right kind of publicity. Many a well-known business man has been forced from obscurity into the favorable notice of the public eye, and then kept there through each succeeding year as steady and strong as the sparkling stream that unites the vast ocean with its humble source in the distant hills.

The present year is likely to be very favorable for intelligent advertising. After so long a period of trade depression the revival is apt to be much the same as a sick man rising from a serious illness. Convalescence will necessarily be slow, and plenty of good, strong tonic will be needed. There is the key. Get on to the rising wave of renewed confidence, of steady business improvement, and reap the cream of the harvest. It is time for courage and aggressiveness and the shrewd advertiser won't be slow in finding it out.

It is a good time for the larger houses to consider the advisability of following the lead of certain enterprising concerns throughout the country by adding an up-to-date advertising department, under the direction of a capable manager, who by giving his whole attention to it, will be able to insure the best possible results. It will be found to be a profitable investment. There is plenty room for improvement in this line, and the first to set the pace in each town will have a decided advantage.

The increasing interest manifested in bright advertising by some of the leading houses indicates that there is going to be some clever work done in this field in the near future. Even in New York city there are beginning to appear some symptoms of cutting loose from the old, bed-ridden styles, and getting out into the modern path. Let the good work go on, and in the meantime let us all watch the results.

The Dream City.

We desire to again call attention to our very liberal subscription offer outlined last week. That it is most acceptable is proved by the fact that we have already received numerous responses, and those who have in possession the handsome volume of sixty-four World's Fair views are most enthusiastic in their praise. The work is issued in the highest style of art, with an elaborate stiff cover in gold and colors, and the engravings are printed on highly enameled paper. The pictures are 8x10 inches and the pages 11x13 1/2 inches in size, and the volume is an ornament to any home. We send it free postage paid to every new subscriber; to any old subscriber who renews for one year and to any person, subscriber or non-subscriber, who sends us one new subscriber, the remittance for one year's subscription to be forwarded in each case.

A Piano at a Nominal Price.
Chicago's largest music house, Lyon & Healy, has moved into a magnificent new building. They have a number of slightly used and second-hand pianos returned from World's Fair renting, etc., etc., which they have determined to sacrifice rather than to try to make room for. These instruments comprise Square pianos at $40, $65, $90, $100 and $125. Upright pianos at $125, $140, $150, $165, $190, $200, $225, $240 and upward. Grand pianos at $200, $250, $300 and upward. Nearly all originally sold for from two to four times their present price. Almost all prominent makes (in squares and uprights) are represented including among numerous others Chickering, Knabe, Steinway, Weber, Decker, Steck, Fischer, etc. This is an opportunity that will not occur again, as Lyon & Healy have not moved for twenty years. Immediate attention is therefore necessary. A good plan would be to order a piano, leaving the selection to Lyon & Healy. However, they will send a list and full particulars upon application. Any piano not proving satisfactory may be returned at their expense. Address at their new sales-room, corner Wabash Avenue and Adams Street, Chicago. Distance is no obstacle in taking advantage of this remarkable chance to obtain a piano, for in proportion to the saving to be made the freight charges are insignificant. If you do not already know them by reputation any banker will assure you of Lyon & Healy's entire responsibility and record of over a third of a century for honorable dealing. Write to-day so as to avoid disappointment.

Rightly Said.

The action of Gov. Brown in pardoning so criminals sends a thrill of horror through the law-loving and law-abiding people of the State, most especially the honest, industrious labor element, who consider the strict enforcement of the law the safeguard of good society and for the protection of their home and loved ones. Sympathy for those in trouble should not take the place of justice, and the execution of our laws. The people who strive to live an upright life in the sight of God and man should be protected against the intrusion of those whose life has been one of sin and degradation. First, punish him, and make him show signs of sincere reformation before he is turned loose among us.—[Earlington Bee.]

GEORGE WILLIAM CHILDS

Why He Was Loved and Honored by His Countrymen.

He Solved a Problem, Said by Many to Be Without Solution, by Building a Mighty Business Without Swerving from the Moral Law.

"Mr. Childs alone, perhaps, of Americans without other than private station or without literary sway had so lived that dying his countrymen looked upon him as of kin and mourned," writes E. Jay Edwards, in The Chautauquan. "He gained a peculiar and noble reputation, not as a spectacular and magnificent creator of some vast scheme of philanthropy, or for majestic endowment for public good, but as one to whom the extending of the helpful hand was almost of such daily necessity as breathing the breath of life."

"The man who as a lad of fourteen fixed his honorable ambition upon the possession of a newspaper, for which he was then glad to do humble service, and not swerving from that purpose for twenty years saw his ambition fulfilled, must in that waiting time of youth and manhood have developed patience, steadfastness, sobriety, economy, industry, which are the handmaids of all achievement that is worthy, and besides these must have cultivated the other qualities that serve him who aims at business success. No other endowments than these which enabled the boy to secure at thirty-five years of age the ownership of the Ledger were needed for those amazing and stupendous business successes which are chief among the wondrous things done in the latter half of the nineteenth century. Vanderbilt, the ferry-boatman's lad, and Vanderbilt, the first creator of a colossal railway system; Stanford and Crocker, the boy adventures and in manhood the builders of the Central Pacific; Bennett, the youthful tutor and Bennett the maker of modern journalism, were equipped by nature and by discipline as Mr. Childs became equipped, and what they like he could have done if faced with like opportunities."

"And Childs did a greater thing than any of these men have done, for he solved a problem said by many men to be without solution when he revealed that a mighty business can be created and maintained, a great fortune gained, a commanding success in affairs secured in the teeth of opposition, without swerving one hair's breadth from the moral law or the second of the commandments of Christ."

Noted Sewing Women.

Among our most noted American writers are women whose literary work is of the best, and who need not fear to enter their needlecraft in competition in any county fair or city prize list. Marion Harland sews beautifully and knits wonderfully well, while her mending and darning are marvels of delicate workmanship, says a writer in Harper's Bazar. Mrs. Harriet Prescott Spofford sent to a fortunate friend last Christmas a gift of her own needlework which looks as if it had fallen from a fairy's loom. Candace Wheeler has a reputation for her beautiful sewing in two hemispheres. Elizabeth Custer knows how to sew well. So does Kate Upson Clark. Mary E. Wilkins sews and embroiders to perfection. Lucy Randolph Fleming and Martha H. Norvell both sew with the same dainty precision which characterizes their writing. The shining examples which these women set may well incite others to take up and revive the study of a too much neglected fine art.

DESCRIBE HER?

The Woman in Journalism as You Find Her.

"Do you think I am going to have petticoats on my staff? Not if I know myself why, I can swear to 'em!" "You can scratch," replied the nervous little woman, who, years ago, applied to a Western editor for editorial work. In those days "journalistic soubrettes" were not as well thought of, nor as prominent, as at the present day.

The gruff but kindhearted man relented, and said he would try her. Her first work in journalism, like all apprenticeship, was trying, but so faithfully did she perform her duty that she won the admiration of the editor, and he became one of the most enthusiastic supporters of woman in journalism, and whenever a woman could perform the work as well as a man, the preference was henceforth given by him to the woman. In newspaper work a woman must be expected to be treated just like a man. No woman will succeed who takes refuge behind her skirts, but, like a soldier, must be ready to obey without asking questions. If a disagreeable assignment be given her because there is no man available, she should consider it a compliment. It should be her ambition to take an active part in all the questions of the day, and not be content to remain in a limited and narrow sphere, with no ambition for widening out. I should consider it much more humiliating to be thought incapable for the work.

One disadvantage a woman labors under is that she often thinks she must not be told that she has not done her work satisfactorily. Why should she not be told? It is the usual experience of woman that there is less sentiment about a newspaper office than any other place in the world. Tears are not a factor in journalism. The average woman who is a wage-earner has no time for sentiment and weeping in the routine of business. This is the day of hustling, and to reap success one has ever to be on the alert. There is no such thing as routine in the highest and best class of journalistic work. There must be an ambition to do better and to excel other, and to faithfully perform each duty.

Strange as it may seem, for it is certainly going back on her record, many women do not possess the news instinct as powerfully as man. The news quality always predominates in the editor's eyes. A piece of news may be worth everything to day and nothing tomorrow. In all cases, but no where is it more profitable than in the gathering of news. One must never be on the quiver for items. Success should be considered a duty, and how to improve should be the effort of all. Use the literary garb best adapted to catch the public eye and go to the point with no unnecessary words.

Criticism is always useful, especially to a beginner. It is humiliating often to see the surgical treatment of the editor in robbing your articles of the adverbs and adjectives and quotations that you laid so much stress upon, leaving only bare facts, and often he consigns to oblivion that which we consider our brightest achievements and which do not conform to his ideas.

The Personal Column and the women's Column, the Columns which are usually given to a woman, should be bright, fresh and broad. The wisest of men appreciate nice little compliments, and the women like to read them, but no one relishes being drawn before the public in a conspicuous manner with fulsome flattery and high-wrought language, which are almost as undesirable as disagreeable truths, or even untruths. All persons enjoy compliments, de lais to the contrary, for very often the person who condemns a complimentary item is persistent in the effort to place herself in a prominent position to catch the reporter's eye.

Remember that vigor, without refinement, and genius, without tact, will never achieve enduring success in any profession. Every writer has some peculiarity in style and description. Nevertheless, there are certain conditions and dogmatic forms which have to be observed and followed. There are many grievances which have to be endured, but remember, to be successful, one must laugh at defeat and be undaunted by opposition. "The world belongs to those who take, and not to those who sit and wait."

Woman can do anything that man can do if she is mentally formed to do it, for I am of the opinion that genius has neither sex or climate. One must be prepared for the slights and slurs of ill-bred people, for in what avenue are we exempt from their rudeness?

Last, but not least, woman should be thoroughly womanly in all her vocations, nor respect for woman who adopt mannish dress and habits to succeed. When a woman reporter meets with lack of appreciation in her newspaper work it is usually due to lack of sense, or tact, for a kinder hearted and more courteous set of men are never found than are engaged in newspaper work.—[JENNIE B. MOORE, in Covington Post.]
